Accelerating Transport to Zero Emissions

Zemo Partnership Summit

Our Journey to a Delivery
Roadmap for Net Zero Transport

Thursday, 3 October 2024

One Birdcage Walk

Welcome to our Summit!

This event couldn't be taking place at a more important moment. Average global temperatures in the last twelve months have surpassed all previous records and there's growing evidence of the impacts of climate change around the world. We're honoured that Professor Sir Jim Skea, Chair of the IPCC, is with us today to bring the latest evidence from the world's leading scientists.

It's an important moment, too, as the new Government begins to get its collective feet under the table, having made promises to accelerate the net zero transition. But central Government can't tackle this unprecedented challenge alone, of course, which is why we've brought together representatives of leading figures from not just the UK Government but from the Scottish &

Welsh Governments too, with sub-national transport bodies and the local government sector.

We're in the midst of a vital transport transition which requires an unprecedented level of collaboration between all tiers of government as well as across industry sectors and between businesses and civil society.

Zemo exists, of course, to help forge these linkages and to help ensure that we accelerate progress through partnership.

Have a good day!
